God's Good Plan for Marriage: Sharing with Grands of All Ages

Date: April 28

Time: 7 p.m.

Place: College Park Church Gym

Speakers: Dr. David Faust, pastor of East 91st Street Christian Church, and his wife, Candy

REGISTER

Pastor David Faust has led churches in Ohio, New York, and Indiana and has also served as professor and president of a Christian university. He has authored 17 books including his most recent, Not Too Old. He and his wife, Candy, live in Indianapolis where he currently serves as Senior Associate Minister at East 91st Street Christian Church.

Pastor Dave and Candy have three adult children, two sons-in-law, and four grandchildren. Candy has worked in maternal and child health as an RN. She is a women's Bible study leader, music worship volunteer, and a teammate with her husband in providing pastoral care for church members.

Most recently both have presented on the Legacy Coalition's Grand Monday Nights weekly podcast. There, the Fausts gave a talk on marriage and the role grandparents can play in communicating about this topic with their grands of all ages.

Grandparent Summit Recap

This February, College Park Church hosted a two-day simulcast for grandparents, transmitted from the Legacy Coalition's national summit in Birmingham, Alabama. More than 200 grandparents from 32 regional churches attended to learn about being intentional grandparents.

Founder & Director of Legacy Coalition Larry Fowler; Summit Ministries President Dr. Jeff Myers; and Trudy Cathy White, daughter of the founder of Chick-fil-A, were some of the speakers. Three generations of Billy Graham's family also challenged grandparents about leaving a legacy built on the Word of God. Dr. James Banks shared on the topic "Love Your Prodigal." The sessions were substantive, practical, and applicable for grandparents who attended.
